

Health & Social Care Practice Learning Team

Clinical Supervisory Skills Course for Dietitians (CSSC)

Placements form a vital part of a student's education enabling them to develop their professional reasoning and learning. During placement students build their professional identity and awareness, and learn to work in conjunction with other professions and agencies. The experience gained also enables students to link theoretical knowledge, skills and values to practice.

Aims of the Course

This free two-day course is being run in collaboration between Leeds Beckett University and the Yorkshire Dietetic Managers. The course is aimed at Dietitians who will be supervising students on practice placement and who are either new to the role or new to supervising placements in the region.

The course provides an introduction to practice education, how placements are structured and the roles and responsibilities of Practice Educators and students. Other topics covered include how to assess students, planning and reflection, dealing with challenges on placement and supporting students who have varying learning styles and varying levels of achievement.

Course Requirements

There is an expectation that those undertaking the course will be supervising or intending to supervise a student placement.
