Course Overview

Aims

The course team is committed to providing an engaging and vital learning experience in both disciplines; this fosters critical engagement with real world matters, in a manner that develops confidence and encourages students to work hard in order to achieve their best.

The aim is that successful completion of this degree will mean that students graduate with sound knowledge, skills and understanding in the discipline of law complemented by knowledge, skills and understanding in the additional disciplines of international business and management.

This will enhance student's employability and employers will benefit from graduates with business and management knowledge in an international context. Legal employers might find students who have successfully completed this programme especially attractive since, in addition to their legal training, they will also have broad knowledge of international business and management as it applies to international business and the issues therein.

Course Learning Outcomes

At the end of the course, students will be able to:

- 1 Demonstrate comprehensive and coherent knowledge, understanding and application of underlying legal concepts and principles

- 2 Act independently in planning and managing study tasks with limited guidance and with an ability to identify their own resources and to retrieve information relevant to the subject matter from multiple digital sources for practical application and integration into existing knowledge
- 3 Autonomously analyse, critique and challenge contemporary issues in law
- 4 Demonstrate a conceptual understanding which enables the development and sustaining of supported reframing of knowledge to provide realistic and coherent strategic solutions to legal problems and the recognition of conflicts and tensions in the law
- 5 Demonstrate a critical awareness and understanding of the position and rule of law, both in relation to specific subjects and generally within its social, economic, commercial, political, historical, ethical and/or cultural contexts
- 6 Evaluate and explore the contribution international business and management makes to understand and inform business behaviour and performance through the analysis of complex and multi-faceted problems within an international and UK context.

Teaching and Learning Activities

Summary

Law modules:

Large-group sessions on the course are typically used as vehicles within which to develop knowledge with the emphasis on ensuring students' understanding of the underpinning principles of law. Large-group sessions also provide an opportunity to prepare for, or engage in, an exploration of the more complex areas of law. Some large-group sessions have interactive elements thereby enhancing the active learning experiences for the students.

Small-group sessions provide an opportunity for all modules to use a range of interesting, challenging and enjoyable activities for learning and are typically characterised by a combination of research exercises and problem-solving activities. The research exercises (for which advance preparation is usually needed) help to develop the student's ability to study independently and to work to a schedule. Contemporary case studies and primary sources are vehicles by which students learn the skills of identifying the factual issues, identifying and understanding legal issues and principles and being able to apply those principles to the facts of the scenario. These skills involve students in understanding and applying the law which involves deep and participative learning

The activities by which the research and problem questions are explored provide variety whilst also allowing for the development of additional essential skills, including critical analysis, critical thinking and reflection. Presentations, in a variety of forms and both group and individual, provide vehicles for exploration of understanding and for developing essential confidence. The students' experiences of real-life scenario problems are further enhanced by requiring the students to advise the parties. This takes their learning a stage further by developing skills in communication and an appreciation and understanding of the practical and human issues which may affect the outcome of a dispute or issue.

International Business and Management modules are delivered by the Business School and so there may be slight differences in teaching and learning approach. There will be the opportunity to engage with your tutor during live taught sessions.

Assessment Balance and Scheduled Learning and Teaching Activities by Level

The assessment balance and overall workload associated with this course are calculated from core modules and typical option module choices undertaken by students on the course. They have been reviewed and confirmed as representative by the Course Director but applicants should note that the specific option choices students make may influence both assessment and workload balance.

A standard module equates to 200 notional learning hours, which may be comprised of teaching, learning and assessment, any embedded placement activities and independent study. Modules may have more than one component of assessment.

Assessment

Level 4 is assessed by coursework predominately, with some multiple-choice examinations and practical assessments.

Level 5 is assessed by a broadly even mix of coursework and examinations including multiple-choice examinations for law core modules.

Level 6 is assessed by coursework predominately. The overall assessment balance will depend on the option modules you select. Dependent on a student's own optional module choices some examination and practical assessments may be undertaken.

Overall Workload	Level 4	Level 5	Level 6
Teaching, Learning and Assessment	297 hours	294 hours	222 hours
