Course Overview

Aims

The aims of the programme are to develop in students:

1. advanced knowledge and critical understanding of a range of literatures in English, informed by recent developments in the field.
2. critical understanding of key literary, critical and theoretical issues and debates in the field of English literature, and the deployment of a range of practical, critical and theoretical skills specific to the modules studied.
3. expertise in the application of theoretical and conceptual models to the analysis and/or creation of literary texts.
4. the ability to produce critical and reflexive evaluation of methodologies, informed by a range of cultural, theoretical, and practice-led reference-points.
5. the ability to demonstrate intellectual independence, self-direction, and originality in tackling problems, and to act independently in planning, designing, and implementing a sustained project of research and/or creative practice.
6. effective ability to construct coherent and persuasive arguments both orally and in written form, including the informed and confident use of appropriate critical vocabulary
7. possession of appropriate bibliographic skills, including the scholarly use of citation and reference in the presentation of written work.
8. the qualities and transferable skills necessary for undertaking a higher research degree in the field and/or for highly-skilled employment/professional practice.

Course Learning Outcomes

At the end of the course, students will be able to:

1	Understand, apply, and criticise key practical, contextual, conceptual and theoretical issues and debates in the analysis and/or creation of literary texts;

2	develop persuasive and sophisticated style both orally and in written form, including the advanced use of appropriate critical vocabulary and appropriate bibliographic (citation and reference) skills;
3	articulate how to transfer the qualities and skills necessary for undertaking a higher research degree in the field and/or for highly-skilled employment/professional practice;
4	reflect on and evaluate methodologies, drawing on a range of cultural, theoretical, and practice-led reference-points;
5	demonstrate intellectual independence, self-direction, and originality in tackling problems, and act independently in planning, designing, and implementing a sustained project of research and/or creative practice;

Teaching and Learning Activities

Summary

Teaching and learning happens in and outside of the classroom. Seminars will be delivered in person. Outside of class students must be prepared to read both the materials assigned to them as well as reading 'around' the topic, especially in the preparation of assignments. Additional learning resources, including some lecture materials, will also be provided online via our Virtual Learning Environment.

Classes typically take the form of seminars, broadly defined to take in a range of teaching activities that cater to various learning styles. As with undergraduate study, at postgraduate level it is key to engage students in a mix of structured discussions, workshop exercises, learning sets and in-class assignments that develop students' critical, analytical, creative and reflective abilities. These activities further develop and hone students' curiosity, problem-solving, active learning and team-working. Because it is crucial to the learning process, all students are encouraged to contribute and engage in debate. Discussions are always inclusive, so that agreeing and dissenting voices are recognised and heard. Where necessary, such as in the discussion of sensitive topics, 'rules of engagement' will be established early in the running of modules. We are mindful of students with diverse needs and have an effective system for those who hold reasonable adjustment plans, which includes liaison with administrative and other central services of the university, including Well-being Support, and Disability Services.

All members of the English and Creative Writing team are published researchers and practitioners who have made contributions to the development of the discipline. It is fundamental to this course that we regard both rigour and imagination as essential characteristics of student work that is carried out on both sides of, and between, the intersection between creative and critical approaches to English Literature. Equally vital is the development of skills in listening, reflection, and thinking empathetically. Through understanding differing viewpoints, and cultural perspectives that are unlike our own, we can better understand -- and indeed question and rethink -- our own voices and attitudes, and develop them in the pursuit of good relationships, positive contributions to society, and an inclusive, balanced sense of our own global citizenship. This ethos is fundamental to the course. Practised in class, and furthered through assignments, we expect to see rigour, imagination and empathy as among the key attributes of graduates of MA English Literature.

Time outside of classroom is spent in the guided reading of primary texts, the researching of secondary materials, other preparatory work such as informal groupwork, and the completion of written or other tasks. Independent learning tasks are regularly set ahead of seminars and workshops, and these provide students with an opportunity to prepare thoroughly for discussions and/or workshops, to absorb and reflect on the topic(s) and to begin to formulate their own ideas and responses. Regular, directed reading and writing exercises further help to enhance students' academic writing skills of clarity and fluency of expression, coherence and persuasive argumentation and the effective citation of supporting evidence. The frequency of such exercises is particularly important at postgraduate level study given the concentration of the credits into a relatively short (one or two-year) programme. A varied diet of exercises encourages adaptability, which, again, is important in preparing students both for the varied challenges of the course assignments, but also the challenges that await them as highly-skilled members of the workforce and positive contributors to community and society.

These learning and teaching approaches accord with the Leeds Beckett University Education Strategy's Learning Pathway, which at level 7 emphasises the value of 'sophistication', independence of mind, and critical thought, while also recognising that 'Level 7 is as much about transition as level 4, and we will support this transition so that all students will become confident in their academic and professional abilities and able to apply their knowledge and skills within complex situations'.

Your Modules

This information is correct for students progressing through the programme within standard timescales. Part time students will be supported by the course team to determine an appropriate selection of modules from the level for each year of study. Option modules listed are indicative of a typical year. There may be some variance in the availability of option modules. Students who are required to undertake repeat study may be taught alternate modules which meet the overall course learning outcomes. Details of module delivery will be provided in your timetable.

Students will be tied to a full pathway at the start of the course for administrative reasons, but then select their preferred pathway in the course of the first semester.

The Major Project module extends across the summer beyond the calendar length of Semester Two.

Level 7
Semester 1	Core (Y/N)	Semester 2	Core (Y/N)
Creative Criticism (30 credits) (delivered over 10 weeks)	Y - all pathways	Major Project (60 credits)	Y – all pathways
Contemporary Literature (40 credits) (delivered over 12 weeks)	Y - all pathways	Literature and History (30 credits)	Y - Literary Studies pathway

Level 7
Literature in Practice (20 credits) (delivered over 7 weeks)	Y - all pathways	The Art of Creative Writing (30 credits)	Y - Creative Writing pathway
		*Students study either: Literature in History (30 Credits)  Or  The Art of Creative Writing (30 Credits)	N – English and Creative Writing pathway

*The combined pathway in English and Creative Writing is achieved by students undertaking a Major Project in Literary Studies alongside The Art of Creative Writing, or a Major Project in Creative Writing alongside the Literature and History module.

Assessment Balance and Scheduled Learning and Teaching Activities

The assessment balance and overall workload associated with this course are calculated from core modules and typical option module choices undertaken by students on the course. They have been reviewed and confirmed as representative by the Course Director but applicants should note that the specific option choices students make may influence both assessment and workload balance.

The modules on this course have different lengths and different notional hours of study attached to them. Hours will be comprised of teaching, learning and assessment, any embedded placement activities and independent study. Modules may have more than one component of assessment.

Assessment

On this course students will be assessed through a mixture of coursework assignments. There is a major independent study module which will require the production of a dissertation or creative writing, coupled with reflective commentary.

Workload

Overall Workload
Teaching, Learning and Assessment	116 hours
Independent Study	1684 hours
Placement	N/A

Learning Support

If you have a question or a problem relating to your course, your Course Administrator is there to help you. Course Administrators work closely with academic staff and can make referrals to teaching staff or to specialist professional services as appropriate. They can give you a confirmation of attendance letter, and a transcript. You may also like to contact your Course Rep or the Students' Union Advice team for additional support with course-related questions.

Student Services

If you have any questions about life at University, call into our Student Services Centre at either campus or contact Student Advice directly. This team, consisting of trained officers and advisers are available to support you throughout your time here. They will make sure you have access to and are aware of the support, specialist services, and opportunities our University provides. They also work on a wide range of projects throughout the year all designed to enhance your student experience and ensure you make the most of your time with us. Student Advice are located in the Student Services Centre in the Leslie Silver Building at City Campus and on the ground floor of the Priestley Building at Headingley Campus. The team can also be contacted via email at studentadvice@leedsbeckett.ac.uk, telephone on 0113 812 3000, or by accessing our online chat link, available on the student homepage.

Support and opportunities

Within MyBeckett you will see two tabs (Support and Opportunities) where you can find online information and resources for yourselves. The Support tab gives you access to details of services available to give you academic and personal support. These include Library Services, the Students' Union, Money advice, Disability advice and support, Wellbeing, International Student Services and Accommodation. There is also an A-Z of Support Services, and access to online appointments/registration.

The Opportunities tab is the place to explore the options you have for jobs, work placements, volunteering, and a wide range of other opportunities. For example, you can find out here how to get help with your CV, prepare for an interview, get a part-time job or voluntary role, take part in an international project, or join societies closer to home.
