Course duration

If you are made an offer of a place on the course, your offer letter will include the start date.

This course can be studied:

- 12 months full-time, September start
- 12 months full-time, January start
- 24 months full-time September start with placement option
- 24 months part-time, September start

Part-time study

This course can be studied part-time.

If you study the course part-time, it will usually take twice as long to complete compared with the equivalent full-time course. The modules may be delivered in a different sequence than on the full-time course, but you will study the same modules at each academic level. With the agreement of the course team, you may be able to increase your pace of study to shorten the overall course duration.

As a part-time student, you will not usually have the option of a work placement.

Work placement

Students may opt to take a sandwich placement of 46 weeks, taken between Semester 2 and 3.

Students who enrol onto the placement route will commence placement when they have studied seven modules and 140 credits. Students cannot proceed to placement until reassessments have been completed and they have achieved at least 120 credits with no overall module mark lower than 50%. The placement is not credit worthy but is assessed on a Pass/Fail basis via a reflective portfolio.

Students are responsible for obtaining their own placement, with assistance from the University. Whilst students source their own placements, they will need to meet requirements which will be outlined before module enrolment.

The locations will vary, dependent on the opportunity.

Entry requirements

Admissions criteria are available on the online prospectus entry for this course.

If you have previous relevant qualifications or experience, you could be exempt from certain parts of your course. Recognition of prior learning (RPL) allows you to start your course at a point appropriate to the learning and skills that you may have developed in a professional, vocational or community setting.

What you will study

Course aims

The aims of the course are to:

- To research and apply a range of management concepts including strategy, marketing, human resources, destination planning, and resilience within an international tourism context.
- To develop an in-depth critical awareness of the current and future international and local political, social, cultural, environmental, economic, and ethical forces that inform tourism leaders and enable them to advance tourism businesses and/or the industry.
- To equip students with the skills to develop and critically evaluate valid and reliable methods of enquiry and/or instruments to collect and analyse data relevant to the tourism sector.
- To critically examine and evaluate advances in current theories, strategies, and methodologies for an extended piece of research and for the purposes of making informed recommendations for the tourism industry.

Teaching and learning activities

Teaching methods used within the course are diverse and provide variety to the student learning experience; students will attend lectures and participate in small-group seminars, workshops and tutorials.

In support of their studies, students will also conduct their own research on the topics in question, consult digital and other information resources and complete directed readings and other tasks. Teaching activities have been selected to represent a challenging and stimulating diet of activities for the student.

The following learning and teaching activities will be used across the modules:

- Students will attend interactive lectures where they will be expected to contribute having done some preparatory reading in advance.
- Students will participate in tutorials where they will work in small groups to engage with learning activities.
- Students will work independently to research the relevant literature predominantly using electronic databases and search engines.
- Students will complete directed activities and formative assessments which will inform the content of scheduled sessions, providing opportunities for feedback.
- Examples of classroom activities include: seminar discussions around contemporary issues and group activity evaluating global, national and local issues that tourism businesses are immersed in, driven by and can transform.
- External visits to tourism businesses and guest industry speakers to provide 'real world' context that will support understanding of key issues, concepts and theories.

Course structure

This information is correct for students progressing through the course within standard timescales. If you have to repeat study or take time out during your course, you may be taught alternative modules which meet the overall course learning outcomes.
