BSc (Hons) Project Management Degree Apprenticeship

Accredited by the Association for Project Management, our BSc (Hons) Project Management programmes focus on project management as a professional career in its own right. On this course, apprentices will study a range of subjects enabling them to develop a suite of transferable project skills and knowledge that they will be able to apply in a diverse range of organisations and project environments. The overall aim of the programme is to enable the apprentice to develop project management skills and competencies so they can plan and manage all aspects of complex projects in a professional setting.

HOW DOES THE DEGREE APPRENTICESHIP WORK?

As an apprentice, new or existing employees study for their degree whilst in full-time employment. This means they are quickly able to put their newly acquired knowledge and skills into action in the workplace.

A tailored learning package to meet the Association for Project Management (APM) standard is agreed between the employer, the university and the apprentice. To conclude the course, apprentices are required to take an End Point Assessment and, if successful, become eligible for APM membership.

Modules will be delivered on a weekly basis and apprentices will also have assignments and further academic study throughout this time. However, much of the learning happens in the workplace through shadowing and learning a range of project management activities.
