Frequently Asked Questions

I can't login to Results Online, what should I do?

To log in, use your computer ID (e.g. c1234567) and the password you use to access MyBeckett. If you experience problems, either follow the [\[Password Problems\]](#) link, contact the Library Online Email Us or your local IT helpdesk.

It may be the case that the device you are using to access the system does not support the Results Online system. Such devices may include the following:

- iPhones
- iPads
- Android mobile phones
- Other mobile devices with web browsing capabilities

I've logged in to Results Online but can't see my results, why is this?

If you have logged into Results Online but your results are not showing, this is probably due to one of the following reasons:

- Your results have not yet been released into Results Online by your student administration team.
- There is an outstanding action relating to your results.
- There are no results to display.

See below for more information.

Your results have not yet been released into Results Online by your student administration team:

- The Board of Examiners for your course might not have been held yet.
- It might not have been 7 days since the Board of Examiners was held; results are usually released 7 days following the Board.
- There might be an outstanding action or query regarding your results, though this should normally be resolved within the 7 days.

Your results have been removed from Results Online:

- There may have been a change to the results that were originally released into Results Online. These will need to be re-released by your student administration team.
- There may have been an error in the results released into Results Online (in which case they will be changed and re-released by your student administration team).
- If this is the case, Results Online will automatically notify the member of staff so that the necessary action can be taken.

There are no results to display:

- No results are available yet (e.g. if you have not yet finished the module).
- The Board of Examiners for your course might not have been held yet.
- You have not done any assessments this year.

What should I do if have queries about my results?

It is your responsibility to ensure that you present yourself as required for any re-assessment or repeat opportunities.

If you are unclear about what something within Results Online means then you need to speak to your course leader or student administration team who will be able to discuss the detail of your results with you.

You can find their contact details in the course handbook for your course online at:

www.leedsbeckett.ac.uk/studenthub/course-handbooks.htm

What is the difference between 'Re-assessment' and 'Repeating'?

There is a big difference between these two terms.

Re-assessment

'Re-assessment' means that you can undertake the re-assessment for a particular module in order to complete your level of your course (i.e. moving from level 4 to level 5 and Level 5 to Level 6) and hopefully progress to the next level of your course (if you successfully pass the module).

Re-assessment marks are usually capped at 40% (unless the specific regulations for your course state otherwise – you can check this within your course handbook). Marks for any re-assessment will be identified on Results Online with an 'R' next to them.

These re-assessment marks count towards any calculation of your final award.

Repeat

'Repeating' means that you have either not achieved the necessary marks / passes to proceed to the next level or to receive your award and you must return (usually the following academic year) to complete that level of your course or to re-take the whole level.

The decision of the Board of Examiners meeting will make it clear which is which. When repeating, you usually pay for any modules you repeat.

You will usually be offered the opportunity to 'Repeat' any modules once only. If you are repeating any modules you effectively get two chances to pass the module.

Once with a full range of marks (0-100%) and if you fail to achieve a pass mark at the first attempt, you usually have the opportunity to be re-assessed (0-40%).

What does 'Components Pending' mean?

'Components Pending' usually means that you have outstanding pieces of work to complete before you can progress to the next level of your course or receive your target award. In many circumstances this means you may have failed a module or modules and have been offered the opportunity to re-submit in those modules to achieve a pass mark (all re-assessment is capped at 40% unless the specific course regulations state otherwise).

The faculty will make it clear what you need to do in the additional comments provided and displayed within Results Online. This would usually say something similar to 'you must undertake re-assessment in the following modules...'.

Anyone who receives this outcome and who have any doubts about what to do or where to go for further information or advice should contact their course leader or student administration team who will be able to advise further.

You can find their contact details in the course handbook for your course online at: www.leedsbeckett.ac.uk/studenthub/course-handbooks.htm

How do I find out further details about re-assessment?

You need to contact your student administration team who can give you further information about the following:

- Re-assessment examination timetables
- Deadlines for the submission of coursework for re-assessment
- Where you can find further information about assessment tasks

If you have other queries, it's likely that your course leader can help to interpret what you need to do or to help you decide what to do next.

You can find their contact details in the course handbook for your course online at: www.leedsbeckett.ac.uk/studenthub/course-handbooks.htm

What does 'Level Incomplete' mean?

Level Incomplete usually means that you have completed all the assessments you were expected to complete within that academic year but you still need to undertake assessment for further modules before the university can formally say that you have progressed to the next level of your course.

This is normally due to the fact that a Part-time student is only part way through a level at the time of the Board of Examiners meeting.

Anyone who receives this outcome and who have any doubts about what to do or where to go for further information or advice should contact their course leader or student administration team who will be able to advise further.

You can find their contact details in the course handbook for your course online at: www.leedsbeckett.ac.uk/studenthub/course-handbooks.htm

What should I do if I think there is a problem with my results?

You need to speak to your course leader in the first instance to discuss any concerns you may have. They will then refer the matter as appropriate to relevant people or members of staff who can assist.

You can find their contact details in the course handbook for your course online at:

www.leedsbeckett.ac.uk/studenthub/course-handbooks.htm
